

Fiscal Year 2022 Report to Congress

(July 2021–June 2022)

The CDC Foundation experienced a successful year of significant program accomplishments during the period of July 2021–June 2022, which included the ongoing response to the COVID-19 pandemic that continued beyond the end of the fiscal year.

The CDC Foundation is an independent nonprofit and the sole entity created by Congress to mobilize philanthropic and private-sector resources to support the critical health protection work of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). The CDC Foundation is focused on one priority—helping CDC improve the health and lives of people on a population basis. Since 1995, the CDC Foundation has launched more than 1,300 programs and raised more than $1.9 billion. The CDC Foundation managed 316 programs in the United States and in 90 countries last year.

The CDC Foundation had a highly impactful fundraising and programmatic year during the period of July 1, 2021–June 30, 2022 (FY 2022) in its efforts to extend CDC’s lifesaving work, including programmatic support to expand the COVID-19 response. Below are program highlights, financial highlights and a listing of contributors. Additional financial information, including the Foundation’s audited financial statements and its annual tax information returns (Form 990) as well as more information on the Foundation’s programs and partners, is available on the Foundation’s website at www.cdcfoundation.org.

The CDC Foundation is pleased to report that, for the fifteenth year in a row, the Foundation in FY2022 received a 4-star rating from Charity Navigator, the nation’s largest and most utilized evaluator of charities. Only one percent of charities rated have received 15 consecutive 4-star evaluations.

Program Highlights

Bridging Critical Public Health Gaps in the Workforce

During the COVID-19 pandemic, health departments in the United States faced the challenge of continuing to track COVID-19 cases and protect public health while expanding the rollout of newly approved COVID-19 vaccines to tens of millions of people. To assist health departments nationwide, the CDC Foundation, with support from CDC, created the Workforce/Vaccine Initiative, deploying public health professionals to fill critical roles in 87 state, city, tribal and territorial jurisdictions around the country. Among the more than 3,000 field employees were epidemiologists, communications specialists, data analysts, public health nurses, infection preventionists and others. In total through all of its staffing efforts, the CDC Foundation hired approximately 4,000 staff during the pandemic utilizing both public and private support. Through the Workforce/Vaccine Initiative, many jurisdictions hired program managers to address the ongoing challenges of social inequity and unequal access to care. To keep students in school, more than 700 field employees helped establish connections between health departments and K–12 schools to support contact tracing and information sharing. In tribal communities, CDC Foundation field employees worked to strengthen public health infrastructure and bolster testing, communication and vaccination support efforts, and across the nation, vaccine demand strategists developed innovative approaches to address vaccine hesitancy and promote vaccine uptake. An April 2022 report by Yale School of Public Health research scientists and others from the Commonwealth Fund estimates that 2.3 million U.S. lives have been saved by the vaccines. By meeting jurisdictional needs and expectations when and where they were needed most, the Workforce/Vaccine Initiative made an invaluable contribution to public health, both present and future.

Partnering with the Community to Impact Public Health

Community is the bedrock of any area, and for many, local community-based organizations like faith-based organizations, community health clinics and advocacy organizations provide a vital connection to health information and services. Through both federal funding and supporters of the CDC Foundation's COVID-19 response—Anthem Foundation, Google.org, Meta, National Football League Foundation, Prologis, Inc., Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, Truist Foundation and other CDC Foundation donors—the CDC Foundation supported 309 community-based organizations across the country. This support helped expand services and activities in communities experiencing disproportionate hardship, built strategic partnerships focused on addressing the root causes of health inequities, curated resource libraries to help promote prevention and treatment, addressed health misinformation and bolstered capacity-building practices to strengthen local partnerships. With the support of the CDC Foundation, which provides technical assistance and resources to build local capacity, more than 200 community-based organizations hosted COVID-19 testing clinics, vaccination events and information sessions. Others provided interpreters in non-English speaking communities, offered mobile clinics, provided telephone reminders and rides to public health events for those in remote areas and raised awareness about COVID-19 vaccination efforts through communications materials and social media campaigns. In addition to COVID-19, the CDC Foundation supports community-based organizations working on a wide range of other health-related projects, such as maternal health, vaccination campaigns and HIV prevention. This includes support for 52 organizations from across the country to establish culturally relevant HIV self-testing programs tailored to their communities.

Supporting American Indian Elders During COVID

From the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic in the United States, tribal communities were among the communities most at risk. In the Navajo Nation, for instance, chronic poverty, crowded living conditions, the risks posed by multiple diseases and weak healthcare infrastructure all contributed to one of the highest rates of COVID-19 infection in the United States. Using funding from both its Emergency Response Fund and a donation from the Howell Fund, the CDC Foundation partnered with the Afya Foundation, a New York-based nonprofit that collects and distributes medical and humanitarian supplies to communities around the world, to provide critically needed medical supplies to seven local partner organizations across four tribal communities: Navajo Nation in Arizona, New Mexico and Utah; the Lakota Tribe in South Dakota; the Yurok Tribe in California; and the Apache Reservation in Arizona. Reaching out to local partners, the Afya team designed shipments based on the unique needs of each community, with a particular focus on the elders of each community. Along with personal protective equipment for health workers, the program delivered essentials like hygiene kits, adult undergarments, canes, walkers and wheelchairs, as well as 200 new mattresses so elders could safely isolate away from their families in cabins built specifically for this purpose. Additionally, the team delivered a shipment of winter gear including blankets, scarves and gloves, also intended for tribal elders. In total, the initiative provided more than 22,000 pounds of critically needed personal protective equipment, medical equipment and humanitarian supplies.

Using Dogs to Detect COVID-19

The COVID-19 pandemic caused interruptions to in-person learning for U.S. school students. Fast, effective screening has been vital to minimizing the spread of infection and keeping schools open, but traditional methods such as reverse transcription polymerase chain reaction (RT-PCR) and rapid antigen detection tests (RADT) are time consuming, expensive and invasive. Using funds provided by private donors to its Emergency Response Fund, the CDC Foundation partnered with the Association of Public Health Laboratories (APHL), Early Alert Canines and the California Department of Public Health to acquire and train two Labrador retrievers to detect COVID-19 infections by cuing on unique volatile organic compounds present in those who are COVID-19 positive. Through the project, Early Alert Canines carried out 50 visits to 27 school sites, conducting 3,897 total screenings with an 80-90 percent success rate. In cases where a dog identified a person as positive, but the subsequent antigen test was negative, a follow-up PCR test was done the same day or consecutive antigen tests were done over the following days to verify results. The success of the project showed that dogs provide a faster and less-invasive testing capacity that requires less staffing and materials than traditional COVID tests. Project partners are looking at ways to scale up the use of canines for disease testing and train them for future epidemiological events.

Repairing Equity and Transforming Community Health

The impact of the COVID-19 pandemic highlighted the critical need for vibrant, healthy communities in the United States. To support this effort, the CDC Foundation is partnering with the Association of State and Territorial Health Officials (ASTHO), the Michigan Public Health Institute (MPHI) and state and territorial teams to strengthen state health agencies' community engagement through the Strategies to Repair Equity and Transform Community Health (STRETCH) Initiative. Through the support of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, the STRETCH Initiative combines virtual learning and robust, tailored technical assistance that centers equity in all public health domains while helping state teams address systemic change. The initiative is centered on the five domains of community-led approaches, placed-based initiatives, workforce development and organizational infrastructure, data-driven management and finance systems. As part of this effort, STRETCH partners with 10 state health agencies and their teams to understand their assets, systems, challenges and opportunities. Each participating agency assembled a team, including senior leaders from the health department, community partners, local health departments, financial partners and others to develop a project that builds collaborative partnerships to address health equity and develop thriving communities. Along with peer learning and individualized coaching opportunities, a team member from ASTHO, MPHI and the CDC Foundation works alongside the state teams to further develop their work plans and guide them through a systems-change approach to support power-sharing in community partnerships while building ongoing trust with communities and across sectors.

Envisioning the Public Health System of the Future

The COVID-19 pandemic highlighted the critical need for a strong national public health system. In late 2021 and early 2022, the CDC Foundation convened a national series called Lights, Camera, Action: The Future of Public Health to examine how the United States can modernize its public health system to protect against future health emergencies. Moderated by the CDC Foundation president and CEO, the series of four virtual convenings was a collaborative effort by the CDC Foundation, the National Association of County and City Health Officials, Association of State and Territorial Health Officials, Big Cities Health Coalition and other partners in public health. Leveraging recommendations from the Bipartisan Policy Center's Public Health Forward, the Lights, Camera, Action series focused on workforce development, data modernization, public health law and governance, and cross-sector partnerships and community engagement. At the conclusion of the series, organizers published full reports as well as action-focused next steps that build on the momentum of the lively summit discussions. These reports highlight ways our nation can work together to build a more robust, resilient and equitable public health system for the future. The summits were supported by the United Health Foundation, the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation and The Pew Charitable Trusts.

Extending a Health Lifeline to Afghan Evacuees

With the withdrawal of troops from Afghanistan, the U.S. Government brought Afghan evacuees to the United States. As these evacuees arrived, the CDC Foundation worked with public and private partners to protect the evacuees from the spread of COVID-19 and provide access to critical health information and resources. Activating its Emergency Response Fund to receive support from individuals, as well as from the Booz Allen Foundation, Dalio Philanthropies, Kaiser Permanente, the Lyda Hill Fund of the Communities Foundation of Texas, the NFL Foundation and Schmidt Futures, the CDC Foundation provided more than 10,000 cell phones to Afghan evacuees. These phones provided families with access to public health and resettlement resources and allowed public health officials to communicate vital public health alerts. Recipients also used the phones to supplement in-person health education sessions, capture and store digital copies of medical records, send and receive official resettlement materials and register for state-administered health benefits. Through the project, one phone was issued to each family unit or single adult. With each phone serving an estimated 3.5 evacuees, these phones provided a vital health lifeline for more than 34,600 Afghan evacuees as they began their new lives in the United States.

Improving Water, Sanitation and Hygiene to Fight Disease

Globally, gaps in basic water, sanitation and hygiene (WASH) services in healthcare facilities place approximately 1.8 billion people at heightened risk of diseases. In the world's lowest income countries, half of healthcare facilities lack basic water access, more than 60 percent lack basic sanitation and 70 percent lack basic healthcare waste management. With support from the Conrad N. Hilton Foundation, Wallace Genetic Foundation and World Vision Inc., the CDC Foundation is engaged in three major projects to improve WASH infrastructure and waste management in healthcare facilities. Partnering with implementing organizations and local governments in Burkina Faso, Ethiopia, Ghana, Niger and Uganda, the CDC Foundation is working with CDC to assess and track progress toward national and global standards for WASH in healthcare facilities, increase uptake of WASH practices through targeted research pilots and provide technical assistance to partners to improve COVID-19 prevention and preparedness by rapidly assessing WASH in healthcare facilities. Through this vital work, the CDC Foundation and our partners are ensuring healthcare facilities in high-priority settings are implementing evidence-based, field-tested best practices to reduce the burden of infectious diseases and save lives.

Building a Network of Disease Surveillance

Information is vital for those tasked with preventing and responding to disease outbreaks. Through a project funded by Resolve to Save Lives, CDC and the CDC Foundation partnered to build disease surveillance capacity in Uganda, Rwanda, Sierra Leone and Nigeria, using web-based information like news and social media to identify public health risks early. The event-based surveillance capacity-building project provides hands-on training and technical assessment of alert and response operations. Through regional exchanges, the project provides public health professionals in each country the opportunity to collaborate, build learning networks and exchange lessons learned. By linking the event-based surveillance of each country with the Epidemic Intelligence from Open Sources system—an initiative of the World Health Organization that seeks to bolster epidemic intelligence by using publicly available information—this project is building capacity for early detection and evidence-based decision-making. This collaboration is better preparing Africa's public health professionals to quickly detect and respond to future disease outbreaks to protect people everywhere.

Preventing Childhood Sexual Abuse Through Research

Sexual abuse is a devastating event in the life of any child. But preventing such abuse is often hindered by critical gaps in our understanding of the most effective prevention approaches. To help fill those gaps, the CDC Foundation and CDC are working together to promote evaluation research and build credible evidence for effective abuse prevention strategies. Funded jointly through contributions from the Oak Foundation and federally appropriated funds, this project has helped expand research evidence by supporting developmental and rigorous outcome evaluation research on child sexual abuse prevention programs, policies and practices. As part of the project, the CDC Foundation staffs a health scientist to coordinate technical assistance for funded research projects, manage a community of practice among research teams, conduct data analyses of novel risk and protective factors to inform the development of primary prevention strategies and collaborate with researchers to publish findings. The CDC Foundation remains committed to protecting children from sexual abuse. Since 2021, CDC and the CDC Foundation have funded nine research projects to address child sexual abuse and child sex trafficking prevention inequities among disproportionately affected populations.

Financial Information

For the year ending June 30, 2022, total grants and contributions received by the CDC Foundation were $258.68 million and consisted of: $78.00 million from foundations; $10.96 million from other organizations and individuals; $10.50 million from corporations; and $159.23 million in federal grants. The majority of these contributions were restricted to the following program focus areas: $56.95 million to infectious disease; $118.74 million to emergency preparedness and response; $37.01 million to global health; $10.73 million to chronic disease and birth defects; $1.55 million for public health leadership; $28.90 million for injury and violence; and $4.80 million to other areas.

The Foundation also received federal funding of $1.25 million for the year ending June 30, 2022, to help defray administrative costs to the Foundation. This funding was primarily used to fund the costs of the staff who were responsible for building the partnerships that generated $258.68 million in support of expanded programming for CDC.

The Foundation is the recipient of certain cost-reimbursable grants that are subject to conditions and restrictions typically met by incurring qualifying expenses for a program. Revenue is recognized for these grants as allowable expenditures are incurred. Of the $258.68 million of grants and contributions received in Fiscal Year 2022, $142.7 million represents conditional cost reimbursement grants that will be recognized as contribution revenue in future periods. As of June 30, 2022, the Foundation had total assets of $210.2 million; total liabilities of $39.2 million; and total net assets of $170.9 million. Seventy-two percent of these assets were restricted by the donors to fund specific projects for CDC. For the year ending June 30, 2022, the Foundation generated total contributions and other revenues for financial reporting purposes of $258.4 million and incurred total program costs and other expenses of $347.1 million. These program costs and other expenses consisted of $30.6 million in project grants; $294.9 million in other program costs; $18.3 million for management and general expenses; and $3.3 million in fundraising costs.
